Will Press Dyer Defies the Officers of Magoffin County.

Knowing that if captured he will probably be lynched, fully armed and prepared to sell his liberty as dearly as possible, Will Press Dyer is hiding in the mountains near Salyersville. Meanwhile a posse of determined men is searching every cliff and valley, inquiring at every house and using all possible efforts to capture him alive.

Dyer has never worked for a living. He has lived in the mountain fastnesses for years, and his food has always been handed out at any place where he demanded it, as the people fear him. He is only about 22 years of age, has but one eye, and is nearsighted at that. More than one attempted murder is charged to his account, and at least one killing, apparently without provocation, has aroused the people of Magoffin county so much that it will fare hard with the young desperado when he is captured, and this he well knows. His latest exploit was the killing of Cleveland Arnett, on Wednesday last, as published in The News last week. Going to Arnett's home, six miles from Salyersville, on the Middle Fork of the Licking river, he seemed for a while to be on very friendly terms with all the family. After eating dinner with the Arnetts he persuaded Cleveland Arnett to accompany him out of doors. After going a short distance from the house he shot Arnett in the back, being so near that his victim's coat was set on fire by the dash. After the villain for safekeeping. The elder Dyer is a widower. Both his sons and himself have been a source of terror in the Middle Fork in Magoffin county. None of the three drink to excess, Will scarcely ever touching liquor. He has often declared to friends that he will never be taken alive for any of his crimes. For the past year, in order to avoid surprise by officers he has slept in the hills. —Cincinnati Enquirer.

Will Run Through Breathitt.

The directors, the promoter, Gwynne Dennis, of New York, and the Engineer, J. W. Jones, of Gallipolis, Ohio, of the Ohio & Licking Valley Railway Company, incorporated in Cincinnati a short time ago, were in session in that city Saturday, making preliminary preparations for the construction, which the engineer says will commence in 60 days.

The projected line which has been surveyed, will, Mr. Jones says, be built from Hillsboro, Fleming county, Ky., or a near-by point on the Louisville & Nashville railroad, to Canal City, Morgan county, a distance of 72 miles, and a branch line will be built from Caney via Jackson to the canal coal fields on Elkhorn creek in Letcher county. Men interested in the road say they have ample funds guaranteed to put the road into early operation.

CHAPTER XV.
"Although I lost a diamond fair,
And tears were in her eyes;
Her hand and arms were bare;
I heard her bursting sighs.

"I stopped and looked her in the face.
"Twas then she sweetly smiled.
Her features shone with mortal grace
Far more than Nature's child.

"With diffident and downcast eye,
In modest tones she spoke.
She wiped a tear and gave a sigh
And then her silence broke."

So sang Mrs. Tanberry at the piano, relieving the melancholy which possessed her, late Nelson, residing in the hill to listen and exceedingly curious concerning the promised utterance of the diamond fair, was to suffer disappointment, as the ballad was broken off abruptly and the songstress closed the piano with a monstrous clatter. Little doubt may be entertained that the noise was designed to disturb Mr. Carewe, who sat upon the veranda consulting a strong cigar, and less that the intended insult was accomplished. For an expression of a vindictive nature was precipitated in that quarter so simultaneously that the bang of the piano lid and the curse were even as the report of a musket and the immediate cry of the wounded.

Mrs. Tanberry at once debouched from the piazza, showing a vast, clouded countenance. "And I hope to heaven you already had a headache," she exclaimed.

"The courtesy of your wish, madam," Carewe replied, with an angry flash of his eye, "is only equaled by the kindness of heaven in answering it. I have, in fact, a headache. I always have nowadays."

"That's good news," returned the lady heartily.

"I thank you," retorted her host.

"Perhaps if you treated your daughter with even a decent Indian's kind of politeness you'd enjoy better health."

"Ah! and in what failure to perform my duty toward her have I incurred your displeasure?"

"Where is she now?" exclaimed the other excitedly. "Where is she now?"

"I cannot say."

"Yes, you can, Robert Carewe," Mrs. Tanberry retorted, with a wrathful gesture. "You know well enough she's in her own room, and so do I, for I tried to get in to comfort her when I heard her crying. She's in there with the door locked, where you drove her!"

"I drove her?" he sneered.

"Yes; you did, and I heard you. Do you think I couldn't hear you talking and standing at her like a crazy man? Why can't you be a good father to her?"

"Perhaps you might begin by asking her to be a good daughter to me."

"What has she done?"

"The night before I went away she ran to a fire and behaved there like a common street hoiden. The ladies of the Carewe family have not formerly acquired a notoriety of that kind."

"Bah!" said Mrs. Tanberry.

"The next morning, when I taxed her with it, she dutifully denied and insulted me."

"I can imagine the delicacy with which you 'taxed' her. What has that to do with your devilish tantrums of this afternoon, Robert Carewe?"

"I am obliged to you for the expression," he returned. "When I came home this afternoon I found her reading that thing." He pointed to many very small fragments of Mr. Cummings' newspaper, which were scattered about the lawn near the veranda.

"Do you know what that article was, madam, do you know what it was?" Although breathing heavily, Mr. Carewe had compelled himself to a certain outward calmness, but now, in the uncontrollable agitation of his anger, he sprang to his feet and struck one of the wooden pillars of the porch a shocking blow with the bare knuckles of his clenched hand. "Do you know what it was?" It was a eulogy of that Vanrevel! It pretended to be an account of the enrollment of his infernal company, but it was nothing more than a glorification of that vulgar loving fool! His company—a lot of snobs, who'll run like sheep from the first greaser-elected him captain yesterday, and today he received an appointment as major! It dries the blood in my veins to think of it—that damned major! Heavens, am I never to hear the last of him? Cummings wrote it, the fool, the lying, fawning, slobbering fool. He ought to be shot for it! Neither he nor his paper ever enters my doors again! And I took the dirty sheet from her hands and tore it to pieces!"

"Yes," interposed Mrs. Tanberry, "it looks as if you had done it with your teeth."

"—and stamped it into the ground!"

"Oh, I heard you," she said.

Carewe came close to her and gave her a long look from such bitter eyes that her own fell before them. "If you've been treacherous to me, Jane Tanberry," he said, "then God punish you! If they've met—my daughter and that man—while I was away, it is on your head."

He turned and walked to the door, while the indomitable Mrs. Tanberry, silenced for once, sank into the chair he had vacated. Before he disappeared within the house he paused.

"If Mr. Vanrevel has met my daughter," he said in a thick voice, stretching out both hands in a strange, menacing gesture toward the town that lay darkling in the growing dusk, "if he has addressed one word to her or so much as allowed his eyes to rest on her overcoat, let him take care of himself!"

"Oh, Robert, Robert!" Mrs. Tanberry cried in a frightened whisper to herself. "All the fun and brightness went out of the world when you came home."

But there were other reasons than the return of Robert Carewe why Rouen had lost the joy and mirth that belonged to it. Nay, the merry town had changed beyond all credence. It was hushed like a sickroom and dolefully murmurous with forebodings of farewell and sorrow.

For all the very flower of Rouen's youth had promised to follow Tom Vanrevel on the long and arduous journey to Mexico, to march burning miles under the tropical sun, to face strange fevers and the gnaws of Santa Anna.

Few were the houses of the more pretensions sort that did not adorn in prospect the gulf of son or brother or close friend. Mothers already wept not in secret, fathers talked with husky bravado, and every one was very kind to those who were to go, speaking to them gently and bringing them little foolish presents. Nor could the hearts of girls now longer mask as blocks of ice to the prospective conquistadores.

Eugene Madrilou's young brother, Jean, after a two years' Beatrice and Bonediet wooing of Trixie Chenoweth, that notable spinster, announced his engagement upon the day after his enlistment and recounted to all who would listen how his tergiversant fell upon his neck in tears when she heard the news. "And now she cries about me all the time," finished the frank Jean blithely.

But there was little spirit for the old merriments. Fanchou, Virginia and five or six others spent their afternoon mournfully, and yet proudly, sewing and cutting large pieces of colored silk, fashioning a great flag for their sweethearts and brothers to bear southward and plant where stood the palace of the Montezumas.

That was sad work for Fanchou, though it was not for her brother's sake that she wept, since, as every one knew, Jefferson was already so full of malaria and quinine that the fevers of the south and Mexico must find him invulnerable, and even his mother believed he would only thrive and grow hearty on his soldiering. But about Crutley Fanchou had a presentiment more vivid than any born of the natural fears for his safety. It came to her again and again, reappearing in her dreams. She shivered and started often as she worked on the flag, then beat her fair head low over the gay silks, while the others glanced at her sympathetically. And when the flag was completed save for sewing the stars upon the blue ground she took it away from the others and insisted upon finishing the work herself.

It was at this juncture, when the weeping of women was plentiful, when old men pulled long faces and the very urethra of the street observed periods of gravity and even silence, that a notion entered the head of Mrs. Tanberry—young Jane Tanberry—to the effect that such things were all wrong. She declared energetically that this was no decent fashion of farewell; that after the soldiers went away there would be time enough to enact the girls they had left behind them, and that until then the town should be made merry.

So she went about preaching a revival of cheerfulness. Nor was her vigor spent in vain. It was decided that a ball should be given to the volunteers of Rouen two nights before their departure for the state rendezvous, and it should be made the noblest festival in Rouen's history. The subscribers took their oath to it.

Miss Betty laid out her prettiest dress that evening, and Mrs. Tanberry came in and worshipped it as it rested, like foam of lavender and white and gray, upon the bed, beside the snowy gloves with their tiny, stiff lace gauntlets, while two small white sandal slippers, with jeweled buckles where the straps crossed each other, were being fastened upon Miss Betty's silken feet by the vain and glowing Mamie.

Mrs. Tanberry came in and worshipped it.

"It's a wicked cruelty, princess!" exclaimed Mrs. Tanberry. "We want to cheer the poor fellows and help them to be gay, and here do you deliberately plan to make them sick at the thought of leaving the place that holds you! Or here you discovered that there's one poor vagabond of the band getting off without having his heart broken, and made up your mind to do it for him tonight!"

"Is father to go with us?" asked Betty. It was through Mrs. Tanberry that she now derived all information concerning Mr. Carewe, as he had not directly addressed her since the afternoon when he discovered her reading the Journal's extra.

"No; we are to meet him there. He seems rather pleasant than usual this evening," remarked Mrs. Tanberry hopefully as she retired.

"Don't you get ready to share big trouble tomorrow?" commented the kneeling Mamie, with a giggle.

Alas, poor adoring secretary, she received a share unto herself that very evening, for her young mistress, usually as amiable as a fair summer sky, fidgeted, grumbled, found nothing well done and was never two minutes in the same mind. After donning the selected dress, she declared it a fright, tried two others, brushed each roundly, dismissed her almost weeping hand-maiden abruptly and again put on the first. Sitting down to the mirror, she spent a full hour over the arrangement of her hair.

When Mrs. Tanberry came in to tell her that Nelson was at the block with the carriage Miss Betty did not turn, and the elder lady stopped on the threshold and gave a quick, asthmatic gasp of delight.

"Oh," said Mrs. Tanberry, "you make me want to be a man! I'd pick you up and run to the north pole, where no one could ever follow. And I can tell you that it hurts not to throw my arms round you and kiss you, but you're so exquisite I don't want to touch you!"

"Dance with me, please!" screamed Mamie, jumping up and down to see the last of her as she jumped into the carriage, "how to be the wildest and kiss me one you love de best!"

"That will be you!" said Miss Betty to Mrs. Tanberry and kissed the good lady again.

killing he took Arnett's rifle and what money he had, about $3.20, and then disappeared. It is for this crime that the posse is anxious to capture him.

Some time ago, while living in Breathitt county, Dyer insulted Mrs. Martin Spencer. Spencer ordered him off the premises, and Dyer's reply was a shot, which penetrated his body, nearly killing him.

Later Dyer met Logan Arnett at Hendricks postoffice. Logan Arnett hauls merchandise from Paintsville, employing a four-mule team. For some trifling matter Dyer became incensed at Arnett and at the point of a revolver forced him to give up his gun and get out of the wagon. Then he shot and killed two of the mules. Before he could get the others, Arnett's brother came up and shot, wounding Dyer slightly. Ever since then he has been after the entire Arnett family, intending to kill them.

Last Thursday, the day after he killed Arnett, officers arrested Everett Dyer, the murderer's father, and Frank Dyer, a brother, Judge Patrick having heard they would assist him in every way possible to escape arrest. Three Krug-Jorgensen rifles and several revolvers were found concealed in their house. Both prisoners said they were sick and unable to walk to jail, so the arresting officers let them use their horses. After going a short distance they whipped up the animals and attempted to escape, but a shot from a rifle brought Frank to the ground, the bullet having grazed his skull. Both were placed in jail at Salyers-

Local and Personal

Jas. C. Patrick, of Stanton, was in town Monday.

D. D. Hurst has been reappointed Postmaster at Jackson.

Miss Margaret Baskett was on the sick list last Saturday.

An epidemic of measles is prevailing among the children of town.

Day Bros. Co. have built a nice sidewalk by the side of their store building.

Martin T. Kelley was at Camp-ton on legal business the early part of the week.

Judge Taulbee, who has been quite sick for several days, has about recovered.

C. J. Sewell is building a residence on College avenue just back of his father's residence.

R. M. McQuinn brought down a wagon load of produce this week from his farm at McQuinn.

The Lenten season ended Sunday. Special musical services were given at some of the churches.

J. W. Stidham, who moved here from Roosevelt about two years ago, moved back to his old home last week.

The weather of Easter Sunday was a disappointment to many of the young ladies of town, as it checked the display of spring bonnets.

Gov. Beckham has appointed G. W. Fleenor a commissioner to represent Breathitt county at the Louisville "Home Coming" celebration.

M. Kolin returned last week from a trip in the country where he had been buying produce, fur skins, etc., from merchants at various points.

H. H. Gibson, who is surveying the route for the Camp-ton Railway from Natural Bridge to Camp-ton, was at home from Saturday till Monday.

Mrs. G. W. Fleenor sent us the first of the week a nice lot of lettuce which she had raised in her garden; the first home grown lettuce we have seen this year.

R. S. May, R. Lee Stewart, Judge W. W. Baker, Irvine Stacy and Robert Bates, all of Hindman, passed through here the first of the week enroute to Indian Territory on a prospecting tour.

Jailer James Little has graded the public square and has sowed the court house and jail yards with grass and has cleaned up things generally, which adds very much to the appearance of the place.

R. J. Fulkerson, who resigned his position with the Canal City Fair, at Canal City, a short time ago, left last week to visit his brother, Clarence, who has a position with the L. & A. Railroad at Richmond.

Jordan Moore and wife, who sold out here and moved to Lexington a short time ago, were visiting friends here the first of the week. Mr. Moore is taking a course of telegraphy in one of the colleges there.

The baseball season in the big leagues is now on in full swing. We hope the Jackson boys will get together and have a good team this year and help us keep up with the rules of our great national game.

The State Board of Supervisors has raised the lands and personal property of Breathitt county 15 per cent for taxation for the year 1904. Judge Taulbee will appoint a committee and go to Frankfort himself to try to have the raise taken off.

Capt. John Pickard has rented the Imperial Hotel and took possession last Wednesday. Capt. Pickard has had considerable experience in the hotel business and has lived in Jackson long enough to know what suits the people in this section.

The News job department has just received the largest and finest stock of stationery we have ever had or that has ever been seen in any job office in the mountains. If you want letter heads, envelopes or anything in the printing line give us a call.

Wm. Osborn, charged with the murder of Deputy Sheriff Walker Wilson, committed in Owsley county last November, was arrested in Menifee county last Monday and was taken to Booneville Tuesday. The Governor had offered a reward of $400 for his arrest.

The Camp-ton Courier, after a suspension of about three months, has been reorganized and is now under the management of A. H. Stammer, Senator Ben Sewell, A. C. Oliver and R. L. Bailey. The first number came to us this week. We wish the gentlemen much success in their new enterprise.

German and American Coffees sold at C. Hadden's.

Try our ICE CREAM SODA. JACKSON DRUG CO.

C. Hadden has just received a nice line of Candies.

John Anderson, of Shoulder Blade, was here Tuesday.

George W. Deaton and wife, of Lost Creek, were here Wednesday buying goods for their store at that place.

John Watts has just had his dwelling house on Broadway repainted, which adds very much to its appearance.

Many of our attorneys have turned their attention to gardening. Taken to "turning things up," as it were.

David Y. Combs, of Hazard, was here Wednesday the guest of his brother, Cooley Combs.

B. M. Hagins has moved his store to the Leck Mimix store house, a short distance below the house he has been occupying, near Rousseau.

G. D. Plummer has moved his butcher shop back into his old stand in the Crawford building, on Main street.

J. R. Blake has gone to the cities to buy goods for his store at this place and also for the one at Lost Creek.

Mrs. S. K. Baird and daughter, Marguerite, of Mt. Sterling, were visiting Mrs. W. R. Bradshaw during the week.

Go to Clarence Hadden's for Olney's Celebrated Canned Goods, William's Pickles and Preserves and Diamond Ice Coffee.

Joseph Hagins, who has been very ill with pneumonia fever at his home at Shepherdsville, Ky., is very much improved.

Try a glass of our Cream Soda, drawn from one of the best fountains in the State.

JACKSON DRUG CO.

Mayor Combs, of Lexington, has issued a midnight closing order, and all saloons must hereafter remain closed from 12 to 4 o'clock at night.

Sam Wilson, proprietor of the Manhattan Restaurant, returned last week from Cincinnati, where he bought a soda fountain for his place of business.

It is reported that an earthquake destroyed a considerable portion of the city of San Francisco, Cal., and killed more than 1,000 people last Wednesday morning.

Miss Jeanette Hyden has returned to her home at Elkatawa. Miss Hyden has been attending school at this place and made many warm friends during her stay.

Miss Florence M. Strong returned to her home at Adair Saturday, after a very pleasant week spent with friends and relatives at Torrent, Dundee and Beattyville.

The Fiscal Court will receive bids on May 10 for the repairing of the jail. The work will consist mostly of plumbing and a general cleaning up of the cells, etc., where the prisoners are kept.

The coal strike is still unsettled, although many of the operators are granting the requests of the miners. We hope an amicable settlement will soon be brought about and that a repetition of the trouble a few years ago will be averted.

Squire G. P. Back was appointed by the Fiscal Court last week to put in such supports as might be necessary to keep the Hunting Creek bridge from washing out. The foundation for the bridge was put on sand, which we are told by high authority, is not a good thing to build upon.

The Fiscal Court, at its session last week, made settlement with the Treasurer and transacted various other business of importance to the county, but as Ed Callahan, former Sheriff, did not appear to settle his accounts with the county for the year 1903, the Court adjourned till May 10th for that purpose.

C. B. Thompson and family, who moved a short time ago to Somerset, have returned, which is another illustration of our theory that those who have once breathed our pure mountain air and drank from our limpid springs are never satisfied to live anywhere else. Almost all of them, sooner or later, come back.

Gov. Folk, of Missouri, has determined to prosecute the leaders and members of the mob which lynched the three negroes at Springfield, Mo., last Saturday night. No good explanation has been given for the act and it is generally believed that the men lynched were not the perpetrators of the crimes of which they were accused.

FOR SALE.

Sixty-two and one-half acres of land, being the s. w. 1/4 of the n. e. 1/4 of Tract No. 23 of the James Reynolds Land Grant, situated in the counties of Wolfe and Breathitt. An offer wanted for this land. Edward Harris & Co., 632 Market St., San Francisco, Cal. 20-27.

THE FUTURE OF JACKSON

Dr. W. G. Bailey Writes of an Institution Badly Needed.

MILLERSBURG, Ky., Apr. 15, 03. BREATHITT COUNTY NEWS.

My Dear Editor: Five years ago today I left Jackson and among the many changes and new enterprises that have taken place in Jackson since I left I know of none that has done more good toward the upbuilding of Jackson and Breathitt county than THE BREATHITT COUNTY NEWS. Many of my old friends have gone to their reward since that time who were friends indeed; not only in Breathitt county but in the counties adjoining, more especially my old home county, Owsley, where God in his infinite wisdom gave me light.

Your numerous correspondents keep me pretty well posted about the people generally in that part of Eastern Kentucky, of whom I am as proud today and hold in as high esteem as any people on earth. It often amuses me when I read in some of the metropolitan dailies of some tragedy or some miraculous escape of some capitalist or prospector with their lives in some of your mountain counties by some writer who knows no more of the conditions in Eastern Kentucky than he does of the conditions that actually exist in the wilds of Africa.

On my last visit to Jackson I could have seen with half an eye the prosperity going on in the building line and with your schools and churches I predict that in the near future Jackson will be the Athens of the mountains.

Now, with the extension of the L. & E. railroad, if the citizens of Jackson would build a hospital it would be to your town and the surrounding country what the hospitals in Lexington are to that city and the adjoining counties. Start the enterprise and you will have as fine physicians and surgeons as any hospital has, and it will increase the population and bring other enterprises, and combined with your schools, churches and railroads would teach Christianity, morality etc., and put funds and politics in the background.

With kindest regards to you and my old friends, I beg to remain sincerely yours,

W. G. BAILEY, M. D.

THE DEATH ROLL.

Joe Barnett, son of Jane Barnett, died at his home on Miller Branch last Monday of fever.

Talton Combs, an old and respected citizen, who lived for many years on Turkey creek, died at the home of his son, Syria Combs, in Lee county last Monday. His remains were taken to the family burying ground near Roger Callahan's.

Mrs. Meriam Roberts, wife of Dr. A. J. Roberts, died at her home at Catosa, I. T., of heart trouble, on April 2nd and was buried at Springtown, I. T., on the 14th. She was the daughter of John Fugate (Perry), who died several years ago on Troublesome Creek. Her last request was that her funeral should be conducted at her father's grave on the 2nd Saturday and Sunday in June by Revs. J. H. Hudson, John Henry Combs and R. B. Landrum. This request will be complied with and everybody is invited.

John B. Mallens, while superintending the cutting of timber for C. Kramer & Co., an Indiana firm, in Arkansas, was killed by a limb falling on him. His remains were brought here and buried Tuesday in the Little Grave Yard, just below town, by the Masons and Odd Fellows of the Jackson and Booneville lodges. He formerly lived in this county, where he was engaged in the lumber business for several years and then went to Owsley county and from there to Arkansas. Among those from Booneville and Owsley county who attended his burial were the following:

C. W. Hogg, H. C. Combs, Rev. W. A. E. Campbell, S. T. Hogg, W. A. Durbin, A. A. Brandenburg, Frank Brandenburg, Arch Brandenburg, John Rose, Richard Combs, H. C. Treadway, Isaac Wilder, Harvey Brandenburg, James Becknell, Wayne Shepherd and Zach Wilson.

Stay of Mandate Granted.

The Supreme Court at Washington, Tuesday, granted a stay of mandate for thirty days in the case of Caleb Powers, while his attorneys prepare petitions for a rehearing. This is an advantage for Powers' attorneys as it gives them the time they desire to see if there is any chance to pass the Langley bill. The Supreme Court in a recent decision held that it had no jurisdiction in the Powers case, Powers having asked that his case be taken from the court in Scott county and turn over to a Federal court for trial. The Langley bill contains provisions giving the Supreme Court power to transfer under conditions such as those which surround the Powers case. If this bill passes Powers will probably be the first to benefit by it.

Murder Charged.

Malcolm H. Holliday, the young deputy collector, of Hazard, Perry county, who was five times wounded by pistol shots in a hand-to-hand battle with a notorious band of moonshiners, and his brother, Tolbert Holliday, who was with him at the time of the fight with the moonshiners, when Pharo Sloan and his brother were killed, have been indicted in the Perry county Circuit Court, charged with murder. By the efforts of the attorneys of the two Hollidays their case was transferred to the Federal Court, whereupon they went to Covington and surrendered. Since the killing the two Hollidays have been away from Perry county and have avoided arrest, claiming they feared to go back lest they be killed by members of the organized band of moonshiners.
